Hot Off the Trail of School Holiday Fun!

The October holidays saw the launch of a new model Boulder Discovery Trail which provided two weeks [ED Note: Tuesday 28th September to Thursday 7th October] full of exciting activities and workshops in historic Boulder.

Previously exploring Boulder's iconic venues, the Trail used to stop for activities and puzzles at Burt Street businesses but with many buildings still closed due to earthquake damage, the Trail was expanded to include a raft of new venues and activities.

"We wanted to make sure there was something for everyone and a few new experiences as well," said Peta Jurgens, KCGM Community Relations Officer.

The new look Trail saw around 150 kids between the ages of 1 and 15, flex their creative muscles with art, craft, theatre and music workshops and a good dose of roller skating to burn up all that holiday energy!

"Tickets sold out very quickly, and everyone kept telling us how excited their children were, so we knew we'd got the mix right!"

"The kids produced some amazing work and we were overwhelmed with positive feedback, so we will continue with this new model and adapt it to incorporate the historic venues as they are repaired." she said.

The next Trail is set to take place in April 2011, so keep an eye out for the posters when the time comes.

The Boulder Discovery Trail is organised by Boulder Promotions and Development Association and KCGM and has been running since 2006.
