100 reasons to celebrate at South Kal

KCGM is proud to be a major supporter of the South Kalgoorlie Primary School centenary celebrations through providing commemorative medallions for the current students.

"I am delighted that KCGM been able to participate in such an important local event," said Cobb Johnstone, KCGM General Manager.

"It's a testament to the vitality of the Kalgoorlie-Boulder community, that this is the fourth Primary School to have celebrated its centenary."

The Lionel Street school, which was officially opened for students on the 8th of August 1904, has had a long and proud history of educating goldfields talent.

"One hundred years ago, the growth of Kalgoorlie was primarily due to the rich resources located here. In the next hundred years, I believe that the richest resource we will develop is the ability of our students to lead and innovate. South Kalgoorlie will continue to assist the growth of the goldfields region and beyond with a commitment to our students who not only inherit the past – but create the future," said South Kalgoorlie Principal Steve Delfs.

Mark Osan, Engineering Manager at KCGM, and proud father of two children at South Kalgoorlie, will be handing out the medallions at a special school assembly on Friday the 6th of August.

South Kalgoorlie Primary has 598 students, from Kindergarten through to Year 7. There are 32 teaching staff and approximately 20 non teaching staff. There are 18 primary classes and 4 Early Childhood classes.
